FASHIONS. FADS AND FANCIES

And Valuable Recipes-Hints to Housewives and Notes for Girls-A Variety of Things to Suit all Tastes and Dispositions-Princess May's Trousseau-Chicago Girls-Travel Reveals Your True Nature.

Truth and Beauty,
I had a friend who lived for Truth,
Who sought it east, who sought it west,
In city street and lonely hands.
And died unprospered in the quest.

Another, who for Beauty lived, For Beauty bartered all beside, And in the evening of his days For Beauty, as was fit, he died.

And many a time between them both Contention on the point was long: One Truth's brave kuight in weal and woe, The other Beauty's champion strong.

But when they crossed the flood of death,
The eternal all-revealing flame
Flashed on their souls, and then knew they
That Truth and Beanty are the same!

PRINCESS MAY'S TROUSSEAU. In Includes 18 Bonnets, 60 Parasols and a Great Many Gowns.

In Princess May's trousseau there are eighteeu hats, caps and bonnets. The hats are sailors, shade hats and looped Leghorns, to wear with light summer dresses, and are designed only for the visit which the Princess May will have to make upon the queen during her August stay at Grasse and for the little trips to White Lodge, where May will, no doubt, often go to spend a quiet day or two with her mother. According to the latest Paris mandate, these shade hats, sailors and tancy straws are all of a tint to match the gowns. For example, there is a straw hat of fancy brains. It is entirely of mauve, and its trimming is a very large bow of mauve ribbon figured in gold and mixed with yellow satin roseties. Another hat is of pale pink straw, which is to be worn with a pink figured satin jacket, made in what English modistes called "Tudor" style. A light blue straw, a pale green sailor and a deep green felt hat, looped with roseties of cardinal, are among the prettiest of what may be called the visit which the Princess May will have with roselies of cardinal, are shong the prestilest of what may be called the negligee hats.

The Princess May is very fond of mauve and violet. She is just blonde enough to wear these colors well. In her trosseau there are twelve mauve cowns. One is what dressmakers call her trosseau there are twelve mauve gowns. One is what dressmakers call "a lily gown." A lily gown is a dress made of soft India muslin. It has a great many ruffles around the shoulders and sleeves and a fine fall of lace. The shoulders of a lily gown look very broad and the waist very small. The other mauve gowns are of more substantial material, though all are as far as possible of English make.

DRESSES TO MATCH HER ROOM.

Princess May's boudoir in her new apartments in St. James Palace is furnished in white and gold. As the young bride will receive the wedding calls of her royal cousins in this room, she has, with rare taste, provided herself with halfa dozen very lovely house dresses, which are half tea gowns and half neg-

The Princess May has a great deal of lingerie, and it is all trimmed with lace. Much of the trimming she has done herself.

SIXTY FINE PARASOLS,

In the matter of parasols, the Princess May is very rich. "The woman who has the largest wardrobe in the world," according to a gossipy report, has forty parasols. The Priness May has sixty. All of these, or nearly all, were made to order, and are covered with the same material as the gowns. The lighter of the parasols are covered with silk, which is then draped with lace or chiffon, or loops of ribbon

CHICAGO GIRLS.

They Have Not Large Feet and Are Very Stylish.

Though the exposition may be the main object of your trip to the west, you cannot, particularly if you are a woman, help observing the girls of the Windy City, for they have been so frequently written up as having large pedal extremities that curiosity gets the better of you and you are rude enough to stare at everyone you meet, expecting to see each individual belle wearing at least number sixes.

Having an opportunity to meet many of them socially, a great shock awaited the writer, as she found that instead of their having over-large feet, they were, one and all, blossed with well-shaped, daintily-booted ones, and in many cases weitable Cinderellag were discovered who had lived all their lives in the Windy City.

Whether it is because they have been so much maligned or from innate womanly daintiness the Chicago girls certainly wear better fitting shoes than our eastern ones, who have nerhaps. our eastern ones, who have, perhaps, grown careless because their feet are small and they think that they will not look large no matter how they are shod. look large no matter how they are shod. The Chicago maiden may have a large foot naturally, but she dresses it so artistically that you are quite deceived as to its real size. Stepping out of a carriage, getting on to the street cars or railroad trains, walking across State street or Michigan avenue on a rainy day one only sees dainty feet in well-shaped, elegantly fitting shoes with never a button missing, and encasing ankles and insteps that would do a Spanish princess credit.

Moreover, Chicago girls are stylish, with a chic that savors of Paris and none of the western brocsiness about it that the funny papers so continually joke about. In fact, the Chicago girls impressed us as being pretty clever creatures, radiant in health and spirits, ultra stylish and blessed with feet of which they should be proud rather than exhanced.

Where Your Nature Crops Out.

If you want to see the true nature of people travel with them continuously for three or four days and you will get a better insight into their character a better insight into their character than if you were to meet them casually for three years in a great city. It would be the advice of the writer to young people who contemplate matrimony to start on a preliminary tour where one could plainly discern all the little faults and folbles in the other.

little faults and foibles in the other.

If you are 'selfish naturally it crops out on a trip, no matter how short it may be. The great I am becomes more prominent, wants the best seat in the car, is put out if he or she cannot continually have the shady side and in the rush for meals proves exactly what they are, even though at other times they may be affable and courteous to the last degree. The person who is sunshing at the start and no less so at the finish is the desirable traveling companion. is the desirable traveling companion. To be such, for must obliterate self en-

This may sound like hard medicine, but it is not when once you get used to it, and you will find, perhaps, that in their methods there is more novelty and pleasure than in the schedule you had laid out to follow by yourself.

Nowhere does a good disposition count for so much as in a long journey. Beauty succumbs to cinders and the dust of travel, but an even temper and gentle manners rise above such petry details, and, though you may be positively plain in a drawing room, you will appear a raving beauty on board a train crowded with iretful, peevish humanity.

crowded with fretful, peevish humanity.

Of course every one expects to do more or less traveling during the summer season. It seems to be a part of our life that we should as soon as warm weather comes around pack up our traps and start off on some trip that will make us long for and appreciate our homes many times during our absence. The comforts that we leave behind we will saily miss, but in traveling we must bear in mind that we cannot have everything to suit ourselves, and remember that in giving in to others we are in the end doing the very best thing to further our own pleasure.

To Cure Warts and Corns.

To Cure Warts and Corns.

A very homely remedy for the removal of these disfiguring pests is to bind soft soap over the affected part, and constantly renew it. Each time it is bathed off, scrape the eorn or wart with a blunt knife, or a proper scraper, and you will gradually effect a cure.

Italian Cream.

One quart of milk, one-half box of gelatine, one-half cup of sugar, four eggs, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cup of water. Cover the gelatine with the cold water and soak a half-hour. Put the milk on to boil in farnia boiler. Beat the yolks of the eggs and sugar together until light, then stir them into the boiling milk, stir over the fire a half-minute, take from then stir them into the boiling mills, stir over the fire a half-minute, take from the fire, add the gelatine and vanilla, and stand aside to cool. When slightly cool, not stiff, add the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth, turn into a mould and stand away in a cool place to harden. This is sufficient to fill a mould holding one and a half quarts and will serve nine people.

Latest French Fad.

In Paris the latest fad is to ride a bicycle in the Bois in the morning, and many of the titled French women do it, and, of course, do it well. The Comte and Comtesse de Talleyrand Perigord and Mile. Clemenceau are among those who follows this forthion. who follow this fashion.

For a Sweet Breath.

For a sweet Breath.

Good teeth and a sweet breath are within the reach of most every one. There is no surer way to destroy the teeth than by the want of brushing or rinsing after eating Iruit. In California, where fruit of all kind is so cheap for ten months in the year as to be within the reach of almost the poorest, beautiful teeth are rarely found, while it is a very company thing to see even young.

the reach of almost the poorest, beautiful teeth are rarely found, while it is a very common thing to see even young women with false teeth. Excess in the use of fruit sometimes produces undue acidity of the stomach, which also reacts on the teeth.

Six ounces of rose water mixed with two drams of chlorate of potash is an excellent purifier of the breath. Rines the mouth after each meal. For acidity of the stomach, which produces bad breath, use a solution of a teaspoonful of baking soda and half as much salt in aglass of water. Drink a little of this and rinse the mouth also.

A box of the very finest powdered charcoal, which can only be obtained at a drug store, should always be at hand. Give the teeth an occasional brushing with it or rub a little between the interstices of the teeth at night, brushing it out in the morning.

To Clean Plush.

Invert a hot flat iron, place upon it a singe thickness of wet cotton cloth, lay the plush upon the cloth with the wrong side downward, and rub gently with a dry cloth until the plus is well raised; then take the plush from the iron, lay it on a table, and brush with a soft brush. a soft brush.

Sweet Wafers.

Beat one-half a cup of butter to a cream, add gradually one cup of powdered sugar, beating until smooth and creamy. Beat six eggs light without separating, add them to the butter and sugar, with the juice of lemon and enough pastry flour to make a stiff batter. Heat the wafer frome and grease with suet. But in two tablespoonfuls of the batter, close the iron, and bake like waffles, turning frequently until they are a delicate brown. Lift out the wafers very carefully, dust with powdered sugar and roll quickly on a bottle or smooth, round stick. If you do not possess a wafer iron, prop the batter by spoonfuls on a greased sheet and bake in a slow oven. Roll as above.

Rhubarb Jam.

Rhubarb Jam.

To every pound of rhubarb allow one pound of granulated sugar and the rind of half a lemon. Peel the rhubarb, cut it into inch lengths and put it into a porcelain-lined or perfectly glazed granite kettle. Add the sugar, stirring to prevent burning. Bring to a boil, skim and add the lemon peel, finely minced. Boil about three-quarters of an hour, pour into small pots and cover securely with paper dipped in the white of an egg. The addition of a grated pine-apple to five or six pounds of rhubarb greatly improves the flavor of this jam. Prepare the pincapple, rejecting the hard core, and weigh it with the rhubarb, allowing a similar weight of sugar. When pincapple is used the lemon peel can be omitted. To every pound of rhubarb allow one

Green vegetables are nover cheap when they come first, nor when the season for them is nearly over; but when the market is supplied in abundance they are not only cheaper, but, being grown nearer home, are better. It will be best, therefore, to use those vegetables only when they are cheap in a large city. Still, fresh vegetables are necessary to perfect health, and they should be provided for the table whenever they are in season and within one's means. Macaroni, rice, dried beans, &c., are economical and nutritions.

Cauned corn, when of the best kind, Good Food Not the Dearest.

Canned corn, when of the best kind, is a most satisfactory vegetable; so are canned tomatoes, which can be served in soups, sauces and as a vegetable, in soups, sauces and as a vegetable, simply stewed or escallopped. Cheese, when properly cooked, is healthful and nutritious. In a perfect Weish rarebit or when toasted or combined with maccaroni, cheese makes an appetizing, wholesome and economical dish.

A Glass-Covered Umbrella.

One of the exhibits at Chicago has some very handsome umbrollas covered with glass cloth, displayed by an Ohio glass factory. This is the first time the attempt has been made to make umbrellas with glass covers. They are not likely to be oppular among the masses, however, as they cost $150 each. Another bright idea is the umbrella that goes into a leather travelling case.

Mock crab is made of the following ingredients: Three-quarters of a pound of pickled shrimps, i pound of cheese, I teaspoonful of made mustard, I teaspoonful of salad oil, 2 teaspoonfuls of vinegar, i teaspoonful of salad oil, 2 teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Mix with the cheese, which should be of the soft, mellow variety, the mustard, salad oil and the rest of the seasoning. Pound well in a mortar; or if a mortar is not at hand, mix thoroughly with a strong spoon until the cheese is like cream. Stir into this preparation the pickled shrimps, which are nowed by grocers, generally at very reasonable prices. Serve in crab shells that have been kept for the purpose.

Brief Notes Concerning Their Work and Ways.

In noting the momentum of the woman movement the fact may be overlooked that woman was recognized intellectually in some countries conturies ago. In the University of Salamanca she had a place, and when Isabella of Spain desired to acquire the Latin tongue it was to a woman that she turned for a tutor. In Italy, even in the thirteenth century, a noble Florentine lady won the palm of oratory in a public contest in Florence with learned doctors from all over the world.

The first order which the dressmaking department of the Professional Woman's League received came from its president, Mrs. A. M. Palmer. The gown is of black brocaded satin combined with sapphire velvet, and was rushed through to success in five days, with but two fittings. The bonnet is also from the workrooms of the league, and the costume was worn at the last and the costume was worn at the last meeting of the league for the admira-tion of the members.

The British committee has secured a very valuable addition to the library of the women's department. They expect to get from the British museum original manuscrips of famous books of women. By a decree of parliament none of these trensures can over leave England. Fac similes have been pre-pared of specimen pages.

The most attractive painting in Mrs.
Paran Stevens' fine house is the fulllength portrait of her daughter, Mrs.

A Long-Lived Fly.

Colonel Jim Whitecar is a yarn spin-ner of considerable note, and, as a rule, he can recl off stories by the yard. Here is one he told to a party of Years ago, when I look an occasion-

"Years ago, when I look an occasional drink of something good, I, with several others, was calling on a friend.
"The host was an excellent judge of good liquor and always kept some of it in his house. I think this day was the anniversary of the birth of some member of the family, and in order to celbrate the occasion he brought up from the cellar a bottle of cognac. The bottle was covered with dust and cobwebs, and while we were waiting for him to ayrange the glasses and pass them around he told us what we might expect. "This bottle, said be, 'was corked nearly thirty years ago. Joe had it nearly twelve years and the stuff ought nearly twelve years and the stuff ought to be good."
"We agreed with him and watched him as he drew the cork, and that act of his knocked all the life out of us. Right in the neck of the bottle was a live fly."—Philadelphia Call.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.

in Engineer Whose Boiler Did Not Need Inspecting-How They Cooled Him Off. W. B. Ruogies, M. E., in the safay Valge. A boiler inspector of one of the large boiler insurance companies called at a plant in New York city a short time ago for the purpese of making an internal inspection of a large horizontal tubular boiler. The engineer assured tubular boiler. The engineer assured the inspector there was no need of examining his boiler, as it was clean and in perfect condition. The inspector, however, wished to verify that statement and continued his inspection. After looking over the boiler externally he dropped down through the manhole in top of dome, and there discovered five broken braces on one head and three on the other. In addition to that the boiler was so dirty that the spaces between the tubes were almost entirely filled with scale. The engineer was waiting anxiously at the manhole, and when the inspector appeared and told when the inspector appeared and told him the condition of things, he insisted on getting in the boiler himself. That was not so easy as he anticipated, but his own weight, aided by the inspector pulling on his leg, finally accomplished it.

The boiler was rather hot, but he had not been in it more than a minute before he concluded he'd had enough, and started for the manhole. But the before he concluded he'd had enough, and started for the manhole. But the inspector, not caring to be caught in a hot boiler with the only air hole plugged with 200 pounds of fat, told him to wait and he would show him just how to get out. Which he did. But in vain, for after many frantic efforts, which only made him hotter and bigger, he got scared, and began to yell that he was dying, and gave up the attempt. Several men gathered around offering advice and assistance, but to no effect. Finally, after half an hour of encouragement on one side and despair on the other, he consented to undress and sit under the manhole, while those outside turned the hose on him for five minutes, which succeeded in cooling him off sufficiently both mentally and physically to allow him to rise out of the boiler like Venus from the sea. He now says he has had enough boiler inspecting to last him a lifetime.

THE LONGEST RAILWAY. The Czar's Great Project for Steam Trave

Across Siberia.

The proposed trans-Siberian railway, which will be the longest in the world, is fully described in the Engineering Magazine by Frederick Hobart, who has used freely materials furnished by the Russian engineers employed on the

As to the commercial importance of the Siberian railway, he writes, there may be different opinious. The steepes of western Siberia are susceptible of settlement and cultivation, and may add a considerable area to the wheat fields which compete with those of America. The river valleys of the Amoor region was also capable of cultivation and may in time support a large population, while the Oussour country population, while the Oussouri country is known to be rich in coal and iron. The long stretch of over 1,500 miles from Tomsk to the headwaters of the Amoor, however, can never have much local traffic. The climate and soil alike forbid settlement, and a small business in horses and cattle from the nomad hards and in lumber from the forests of the Irish will be the most that can be Through commercial traffic expected. Through commercial traffic to the Pacific cannot be large, though the Chinese trade will be an Item of considerable importance. With all allowances for growth, however, it is safe to say that, if the road is regarded simply as an investment for capital, its commercial prospects would not warrant its construction for many years to come.

The main purpose of the line is not commercial, however, but military and political. The trans-Caspian railway has consolidated and made permanent has consolidated and made permanent the Russian power in central Asia, and its extension to Khokand and Tashkend, now well under way, will make an ex-cellent supply line for an army invad-ing China from the west. The Siberian line on the other side will be a base line for operations from the north and east, and the ancient empire will be placed at a serious disadvantage. The shrowd-est of the Chinese statesmen are aware of this, and their efforts to strengthen of this, and their efforts to strengthen their northern frontier are in contrast to the supineness of the English, who seem now, as usual, to rely altogether on their naval force to check the designs of their great rival in the east.

It is undoubtedly a perception of these possibilities which has made the project a favorite one in the imperial circle, and brought about the conditions necessary to secure its early execution. The official order calls for the completion of the entire road in 1904; and tion of the entire road in 1904; and while it seems hardly possible that the work can be completed in ten years with the means at hand, there is little doubt that the opening decade of the twentieth century will see the comple-tion of the first trans-Asiatic railroad.
